

A photograph of a highly ornate kitchen. The central feature is a kitchen island with a black granite countertop and a white, intricately carved pedestal base. On the island, there is a silver faucet, a teapot, a teacup, and some rolled-up documents. The island is surrounded by light-colored, paneled cabinetry with decorative carvings. Above the island, a large, multi-tiered crystal chandelier hangs from a ceiling with dark wood beams and recessed lighting. In the background, a range hood with a decorative facade is visible, along with a built-in oven and a television screen integrated into the upper cabinets. The overall style is classic and elegant, with a focus on detail and craftsmanship.

Seeking to capture the essence of Europe in this kitchen, designer Beth Whitlinger merged a European style along with the homes' Southern California location to create a kitchen masterpiece.

“The island is not only beautiful, but it gives my family more space to use when we entertain.”